in tales from kentucky funeral homes william lynwood montell has collected stories and reminiscences from funeral home directors and embalmers across the state these accounts provide a record of the business of death as it has been practiced in kentucky over the past fifty years the collection ranges from tales of old time burial practices to stories about funeral customs unique to the african american community to tales of premonitions mistakes and even humorous occurrences other stories involve such unusual aspects of the business as snake handling funerals mistaken identities and in home embalming taken together these firsthand narratives preserve an important aspect of kentucky social life not likely to be collected elsewhere most of these funeral home stories involve the recent history of kentucky funeral practices but some descriptive accounts go back to the era when funeral directors used horse drawn wagons to reach secluded areas these accounts including stories about fainting relatives long winded preachers and pallbearers falling into graves provide significant insights into the pivotal role morticians have played in local life and culture over the years though it has often been passionately criticized as fraudulent exploitative even pagan the american funeral home has become nearly as inevitable as death itself an institution firmly embedded in our culture but how did the funeral home come to hold such a position what is its history and is it guilty of the charges sometimes leveled against it in rest in peace gary laderman traces the origins of american funeral rituals from the evolution of embalming techniques during and after the civil war and the shift from home funerals to funeral homes at the turn of the century to the increasing subordination of priests ministers and other religious figures to the funeral director throughout the twentieth century in doing so he shows that far from manipulating vulnerable mourners as jessica mitford claimed in her best selling the american way of death 1963 funeral directors are highly respected figures whose services reflect the community s deepest needs and wishes indeed laderman shows that funeral directors generally give the people what they want when it is time to bury our dead he reveals for example that the open casket often criticized as barbaric provides a deeply meaningful moment for friends and family who must say goodbye to their loved one but he also shows how the dead often come back to life in the popular imagination to disturb the peace of the living drawing upon interviews with funeral directors major historical events like the funerals of john f kennedy and rudolf valentino films television newspaper reports proposals for funeral reform and other primary sources rest in peace cuts through the rhetoric to show us the reality and the real cultural value of the american funeral many people are curious about what goes on behind the scenes at a funeral home add a live in family to this scenario and you ll step into our lives at the funeral home shh be quiet there s someone at the door don t ever talk about anything you have seen or heard concerning someone s death outside the walls of our home mourning families need to know they can trust our integrity and our ability to keep confidentiality for the author s family these admonitions were ingrained in the children s minds at an early age this book gives an insightful view of every facet of the funeral from the time a death call is received until the funeral is completed stories of days in the ambulance business in conjunction with the funeral home are also related the funeral director s role the spouse s role the children s role and how the children thrived in an atmosphere of death are shared with the reader how funeral directors cope with stress and how wives cope with their husbands during these times are revealed years later following a tragic death three people look back and share their stories of moving from despair to recovery interspersed through every chapter are stories and vignettes shared by many funeral directors throughout the midwest concerning the lifestyle for the family living in the funeral home and true incidents of specific funerals some stories are sad others are tragic a few are humorous embracing faith hope and love is a primary requisite for healing intended audience general readers of all ages funeral home directors hospice patients mortuary students and people who have had a loved one die by natural means or tragedy
